Cpl. Nathan Cirillo wanted to serve Canada in the military since his days at Sherwood Secondary School, when he wrote in his friends' yearbook that they would all go to Afghanistan together. But that would never happen.

"He always wanted to serve his country," said his friend Jimmy Doan.

"At the time, that's where help was needed and he always wanted to be the person to help," said friend Alana Schneider.

After the news broke that Cirillo, 24, was the reservist shot and killed in Ottawa Wednesday, his high school friends went to the James Street Armoury in Hamilton, the home of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

Mourners left flowers all afternoon and into the evening as reservists, who wore street clothes as they were warned not to wear their uniforms in public, filed in through the armoury gates.

Cirillo's friends remembered him as the class clown who always made everybody laugh. Cirillo has two sisters and parents in Hamilton whom he was very close to, his friends said.

Schneider's fondest memory of Cirillo was eating his army food under a tree near their school. He'd been bragging about it and then brought some for his friends to try.

"It was awful," she said.

He has a young son named Marcus. Cirillo met the boy's mother, Kendra, at the Ancaster Fair after Cirillo and Doan were escorted out for not paying their way in, recalled Doan. Kendra and a friend asked them for a ride home, he said. "And voilà."

Jason Melnyk, also a high school friend, said Cirillo worked at GoodLife Fitness and loved working out. He last saw him at the gym, where he was lifting 210 pounds.

"He made it look easy, which pissed me off," he said.

Schneider said he was always strong, and recalled Cirillo lifting her up over his head and throwing her into a lake back in high school, she said.

A young woman who came by the James Street Armoury to pay her respects is a family friend and babysits Cirillo's son Marcus. Cirillo was funny, but would never take jokes too far, she said.

Brian Bowman wins with commanding lead

Maximum Bowmentum?

Nearly doubles Judy Wasylycia-Leis' votes

ELISHA DACEY
elisha.dacey@metronews.ca

Brian Bowman is Winnipeg's new mayor.

With nearly double the votes of Judy Wasylycia-Leis, Bowman pulled out a surprising win Wednesday night to become Winnipeg's first aboriginal mayor.

Robert-Falcon Ouellette came in third, and Gord Steeves ran in fourth place. Steeves announced his retirement from politics.

Bowman thanked supporters at 9:50 p.m. "I can't express the honour, the gratitude and excitement I feel at this very moment.

"A positive change is coming to city hall. What an incredible night.

"Winnipeg needed a new generation of leadership. And together, with all of you, we've done just that."

Ouellette gave a gracious concession speech at 9 p.m. "Even though we didn't get the results we wanted, we have achieved great things," he said. "This is something we should all be very proud of."

Wasylycia-Leis spoke to supporters just before 9:30 p.m. "I'm humbled by your steadfast support," she said. "I don't need to tell you how much a roller-coaster ride this campaign has been.... I will never, never forget the strength you have given me.

"Whatever the result, we knew we were bringing people together to talk about the issues.... We didn't make it, but we did make a difference."

Three incumbents were unseated with Jason Schreyer taking a commanding lead over Thomas Steen in Elmwood-East Kildonan, and Cindy Gilroy above Harvey Smith in Daniel McIntyre. Shawn Dobson is the new councillor over Grant Nordman in St. Charles.

Smith said he'd miss being at city hall.

"I'm looking forward to doing more things in the city. I've been saying what no other candidate has. I want to see an investment in the inner city."

Gilroy said she promised to do Smith proud. "I know Harvey served our community well, I'm looking forward to taking over, and change.... I think I'm going to work well with Bowman. The learning curve is huge, I'm going to have to get to work," she said.

"It's just wonderful to be elected having worked in my community for decades," said Schreyer, who added he wasn't too surprised that he was able to beat out sitting councillor Thomas Steen for the Elmwood-East Kildonan seat. "I was getting a solid impression that people were willing to put confidence in me to work with city council to work on people's biggest priorities — priorities that I share."

Over in St. Boniface, Matt Allard took an early lead and stayed there. In St. Norbert, the same thing happened with Janice Lukes. Charleswood-Tuxedo's new councillor is Marty Morantz. Scott Gillingham is the new face in St. James.

Morantz said he's shocked and thrilled at his win. "I still can't believe it, I'm so happy — we're all so happy. I can't thank my volunteers enough. You know it doesn't happen without the volunteers. It all hasn't quite sunk in yet."

Woman 'bewildered' after charged with hiding baby remains

Six infants. Police say it will be months before more information comes to light

Police have charged a woman who was renting a storage locker where the remains of six babies were found, but they say it could be months before they know who the infants were or how they died.

Andrea Giesbrecht, 40, was arrested outside her home in the Maples. Const. Eric Hofley said Giesbrecht, who has also used the name Andrea Naworynski, faces six charges of concealing a body and one charge of breaching probation.

Court documents show the charges date from between March 7 of this year to Oct. 20.

But Hofley said it will take an extensive forensic investigation to determine how long the bodies were in the locker and if Giesbrecht is related to the dead infants.

The state of the remains discovered Monday was such that police were initially unable to determine how many babies were in the locker. Their ages are still unknown, but they are believed to have been newborns, he said.

There are no homicide charges right now and police aren't interviewing any other suspects, he said.

Greg Brodsky, Giesbrecht's lawyer, said he had seen a preliminary outline of the charges and met with his client.

"She's in bewilderment," he said. "But I can't talk to you about what she said to me because that would be a breach of solicitor-client privilege."

Giesbrecht was initially arrested on murder charges, but those weren't the charges that were filed with the court, Brodsky said. That indicates the autopsy and forensic investigation isn't complete yet, he said.

The breach of probation charge laid by police relates to two charges for fraud over $5,000 that were laid against Giesbrecht in 2012. She was sentenced to probation on those charges last month, Brodsky said.

She will be applying for bail and a date for that hearing is expected to be set Thursday, he added.

Ottawa thrown into chaos after gunman storms the Hill

Police secure an area around Parliament Hill on Wednesday. A gunman opened fire at the National War Memorial, killing a soldier, then moved to nearby Parliament Hill and wounded a security guard before he was shot, reportedly by Parliament's sergeant-at-arms. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rampage. Shooter killed, but police remain on lookout for more suspects

TREVOR GREENWAY

Ottawa went into siege mode Wednesday after a gunman rampaged into Parliament Hill's Centre Block shortly after he shot and killed a Canadian Forces reservist who was guarding the National War Memorial.

A high-ranking federal official confirmed Wednesday that the gunman killed in Wednesday's deadly shooting incident was Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, according to The Canadian Press.

Cpl. Nathan Cirillo has been identified as the soldier killed by Zehaf-Bibeau at the National War Memorial.

The Hamilton, Ont.-based reservist was standing as the honour guard at the memorial when he was shot. He later succumbed to his injuries.

On Wednesday night, police reinstated a lockdown in some areas of downtown Ottawa before later calling it off.

Police said there's no longer a threat to public safety in the downtown core. However, an investigation is ongoing on Parliament Hill. The Hill is closed to the public.

The RCMP are leading the investigation. More police presence is expected in the downtown area over the next few days.

According to witnesses, Cirillo was shot twice at "point-blank" range before the gunman ran toward Parliament's Centre Block. Several MPs said House of Commons Sergeant-at-Arms Kevin Vickers then fatally shot the gunman.

In a release issued Wednesday afternoon, police confirmed Zehaf-Bibeau had been killed. No other suspects are in custody, though police said others are being sought.

In a separate release, Ottawa Hospital said it had received three shooting victims from Wednesday's incident. Two are listed in stable condition.

Police refuted earlier reports of a separate shooting at the Rideau Centre mall.

Footage captured by a Globe and Mail reporter also shows police opening fire within the Hall of Honour.

Malala events called off

Prime Minister Stephen Harper's office said two events scheduled for Wednesday in Toronto with Nobel Peace Prize winner Malala Yousafzai were cancelled.

- Harper was to moderate an afternoon question-and-answer session with Yousafzai at a Toronto high school.
- He was then scheduled to head to a downtown hotel, where the 17-year-old was to receive honorary Canadian citizenship.

Barnable told Metro he saw the whole shooting happen from his office on the East Block of Parliament.

"The guy pulled up outside the war memorial, jumped out of his car, got out with a rifle and shot at the guys who guard the war memorial. He hit one by the look of it. The other (soldier) booted it."

"(The shooter) ran back into his car, backed up Wellington (Street), and then swerved around and came up and jumped out and ran up towards the House of Commons. He had a long rifle."

Barnable said the man pulled the plates off a grey Toyota Corolla.

"He ran up the Hill and had a scarf covering his face. I ran down and told security to lock the doors."

Tony Zobl, 35, said he saw the soldier being shot from his office window above the war memorial.

"I looked out the window and saw a shooter — a man dressed all in black with a kerchief over his nose and mouth and something over his head as well — holding a rifle and shooting an honour guard in front of the cenotaph point-blank, twice," Zobl said.

"The honour guard dropped to the ground and the shooter kind of raised his arms in triumph."

Scott Walsh was working in a manhole near the East Block building when he said he heard gunshots. He then saw the ensuing panic and a gunman he said had long black hair and a face covered with a white scarf.

"He had a double-barrelled shotgun, he was about five feet from me and he ran right beside us, ran past the woman with the stroller and child."

The gunman then hijacked a car at gunpoint and drove it toward the Peace Tower.

The incident comes just two days after two Canadian soldiers were run over — and one of them killed — in Quebec by a man with jihadist sympathies.

Witnesses and those who have seen anything suspicious are urged to call 911, Crime Stoppers or Ottawa police directly at 613-236-1222, ext. 5493.

On the scene

Witnesses describe close calls with shooter

Barry Willis, a contractor for Bell Canada who was working in front of Parliament Hill at the time of the shooting, said he heard five or six gunshots and saw the shooter running by him carrying a large firearm, possibly a shotgun or rifle.

"He turned around, pointed the gun at me and I dove behind my truck," said Willis, who was still rattled by the incident after speaking to the RCMP. "Another young parliamentarian type of guy dove into my truck."

Willis described the gunman he saw as a "very young" man wearing a "blue-and-white headscarf" and a long coat.

"I'm shaken up. I'm ex-military and I've never had a gun pointed at me like that," said Willis as police ushered him and other bystanders to a safer area along Elgin Street across from the National War Memorial.

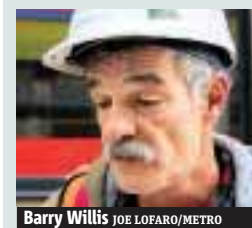

Alberta Labour Minister Ric McIver was on Wellington Street when he said he saw a gunman move on foot.

"I saw him go around the corner toward the Parliament Buildings," said McIver. "It was a little frightening and (I) worried about people's safety."

Jennifer Wiebe was on lockdown inside a Sparks Street office building. Police evacuated her and others about two hours later.

"It's certainly unnerving to know (because) Parliament is a very public place and (there are) lots of people," she said.

Advice to parents of kids exposed to tragedy in Ottawa

Talk, listen. Ideas for parents tasked with helping children understand shootings in nation's capital

The extraordinary events on Parliament Hill on Wednesday had the look of a Hollywood movie or a video game.

But the fatal shooting of a reservist soldier at the National War Memorial and the killing of a gunman in the Centre Block of the nearby Parliamentary complex are starkly real events that will likely be distressing for children, psychologists warn.

They have some advice for parents who may be faced with the troubling task of trying to explain to children actions that are heinous and events that are tragic.

Here are some tips:

Talk and listen. Mainly listen

There is no way to shelter children from this event — they will hear about the attack, says Sandra Mendlowitz, a clinical psychologist in the anxiety disorders program at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children and an assistant professor of child psychiatry at the University of Toronto.

"These can be very scary moments and you need to talk to your child about what their worries are and what their concerns are. And you need to be truthful, but in a way that is (age) appropriate," she says.

"Find out what they're worried about. Find out what they know. Because sometimes parents assume kids know things that they actually don't know."

Gear your explanations to your audience

David Wolfe, a psychologist who specializes in issues affecting children and youth at Toronto's Centre for Addiction and Mental Health, says young children are going to be pretty concrete in their thinking and are likely to ask a question like: "Can he come here to my house and shoot me?"

Children who are 10, 11, 12 are at the age where they're starting to realize that the world is a more complex and less safe place than they previously understood. This age group may be very troubled by these events.

Parents should assure children that they are safe, but will also have to explain — at least to the older ones — that sometimes bad things happen.

Sergeant-at-arms hailed as a hero on Parliament Hill

Selfless action.

Longtime RCMP vet and head of House of Commons security led the sweep resulting in the shooter's death

Kevin Vickers, the decorated RCMP veteran credited with bringing down the Parliament Hill gunman, has always put community and country first, his brother said Wednesday.

The 58-year-old, now serving as House of Commons sergeant-at-arms, is believed to have led a team of officers into the Centre Block building and shot an armed intruder.

Across the country in Victoria, his brother John Vickers waited anxiously for word that his brother was all right — he'd seen raw footage of the dramatic shootout.

"It was just a tremendous sense of relief that he was OK," he said, adding he'd been in contact with family but hadn't spoken to his brother.

"The situation's still a bit fluid and because he's the guy still in charge of the security there, I don't need to be high on the conversation scale right now for him," John said Wednesday.

John said while the sergeant-at-arms may seem to be a symbolic position, what with the long gowns and the ceremonial sceptre he's often in possession of, it's actually a role of great importance.

"He's the top gun there.... There's a lot of infrastructure there and I think he actually has 3,000 people there that he's in charge of," John said. "It's a huge responsibility."

John said his brother served with the Calgary RCMP in the 1990s and called the community of Scenic Acres home. He rose through the ranks and eventually moved to New Brunswick.

At age 58, Kevin was appointed director of security operations for the House of Commons in June 2005.

On Twitter, MPs credited Vickers with saving their lives.

"MPs and Hill staff owe their safety, even lives, to Sergeant-at-Arms Kevin Vickers who shot (the) attacker just outside the MPs' caucus rooms," tweeted New Democrat Craig Scott.

Veterans Affairs Minister Julian Fantino tweeted: "I am safe and profoundly grateful to Sgt-at-Arms Kevin Vickers and our security forces for (the) selfless act of keeping us safe."

John, meanwhile, said his brother has always put service to the country first.

"It's never been about him.... He was called upon by the nation today to respond.... It doesn't surprise me that he answered the call on behalf of the nation and served us to the extent that he had to."

A student from London, Ont., described a tense atmosphere in lockdown at the University of Ottawa.

Emily Cordes, 22, spoke to Metro from inside the university, just a brief walk from Parliament Hill, as shootings unfolded Wednesday.

A soldier died after being shot while standing guard at the National War Memorial.

The man believed to be the shooter is also dead, officials have said. Two more shooting victims are said to be in stable condition at hospital.

Cordes said everyone was afraid.

Some students were trying to keep the mood light, even watching shows on Netflix, but everyone was staying as silent as possible.

"All of the university and much of the city is locked down," said Cordes, who's studying communication with a minor in French as a second language.

"All students who were on campus at the time of lockdown were told to stay on campus in locked classrooms with lights off."

Asked about the mood at the university and the classroom where she was sitting at the time, Cordes said it was

"quite varied."

"A lot of students in this room don't seem too concerned and are passing the time watching Netflix and chatting with each other.

"Others like myself are wanting to follow instructions and stay silent until we are told we can leave.

"Nonetheless, it's a very scary experience for all involved — even those who are taking it lightly."

She said her class had been due to take a midterm

Wednesday, but it was cancelled.

Cordes moved to Ottawa to study in 2011, but said she often returns to London.

A short drive from downtown at Carleton University, Londoner Haley Ritchie, 21, was in class as the drama unfolded.

"It's pretty crazy," said the fourth-year journalism student, whose family still lives in London.

"I think most people are just absolutely shocked that this happened, especially in Ottawa. It's not normal here."

She said she had been swapping texts with her roommate, a student at the University of Ottawa who was in lockdown there for most of the day.

People were coping well, Ritchie added, but there could be difficult times as the events sink in.

"The fallout's going to come in a few days," she said. "I think the reaction's going to come later."

Shades of gunman who stormed Quebec legislature in 1984

The attack on Parliament that left a Canadian Forces reservist dead Wednesday chilled the longest-serving member of Quebec's legislature as he recalled a gunman's assault there 30 years ago.

"It affects us, it touches us," a visibly moved Francois Gendron said in Quebec City. "These are difficult memories."

Gendron, an ever-present member of the national assembly since 1976, was at the legislature when Cpl. Denis Lortie went on his rampage on May 8, 1984.

Evidence of the tragedy can still be seen, including a hole in a window shutter and a graze on a marble wall.

That very same legislature met Wednesday under the eyes of a half-dozen provincial police officers. A number of police vehicles, including a truck from the provincial force's emergency response team, were parked outside and public access to the building was also limited.

Back in 1984, the legislature was minutes away from convening when Lortie, a disgruntled army supply clerk, slipped into the historic building through a side door.

Lortie was dressed in fatigues and carrying two submachine-guns. He had already delivered an audio tape to a Quebec City radio station vowing to "destroy the Parti Québécois," describing them as "worse than communists."

Georges Boyer, 59, and Camille Lepage, 54, both national assembly employees, were fatally shot as Lortie made his way to the legislative chamber.

Roger Lefrancois, 57, an employee of Quebec's chief electoral officer, was critically wounded as Lortie entered the ornate chamber and began spraying bullets. Lefrancois would later die in hospital.

A group of schoolchildren who were in an adjacent room were also pinned down until police could rescue them and their chaperone.

Lortie plopped down in the Speaker's chair and fired wildly. At one point, he howled in rage and threw his dentures across the room.

'CANADA WILL NEVER BE INTIMIDATED'

Prime Minister Stephen Harper in a screengrab of his televised statement from an undisclosed location in Ottawa on Wednesday night, the full transcript of which is below. PMO/THE CANADIAN PRESS

My fellow Canadians.

For the second time this week, there has been a brutal and violent attack on our soil. Today our thoughts and prayers are with the family and friends of Cpl. Nathan Cirillo of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. Cpl. Cirillo was killed today, murdered in cold blood as he provided a ceremonial honour guard at Canada's National War Memorial, that sacred place that pays tribute to those who gave their lives so that we can live in a free, democratic and safe society.

Likewise our thoughts and prayers remain also with the family and friends of Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent, who was killed earlier this week by an ISIL-inspired terrorist.

Tonight we also pray for the speedy recovery of the others injured in these despicable attacks.

Fellow Canadians, we've also been reminded today of the compassionate and courageous nature of so many Canadians — like those private citizens and first responders who came to provide aid to Cpl. Cirillo as he fought for his life. And of course the members of our security forces, in the RCMP, the City of Ottawa police, and in Parliament, who came quickly and at great risk to themselves to assist those of us who were close to the attack.

Fellow Canadians, in the days to come, we will learn more about the terrorist and any accomplices he may have had. But this week's events are a grim reminder that Canada is not immune to the types of terrorist attacks we have seen elsewhere around the world.

We are also reminded that attacks on our security personnel and on our institutions of governance are by their very nature, attacks on our country, on our values. On our society, on us Canadians as a free and democratic people who embrace human dignity for all.

But let there be no misunderstanding. We will not be intimidated. Canada will never be intimidated. In fact, this will lead us to strengthen our resolve and redouble our efforts and those of our national security agencies to take all necessary steps to identify and counter threats and keep Canada safe here at home, just as it will lead us to strengthen our resolve and redouble our efforts to work with our allies around the world and fight against the terrorist organizations who brutalize those in other countries with the hope of bringing their savagery to our shores. They will have no safe haven.

While today has been without question a difficult day, I have no doubt Canadians will pull together with the kind of firm solidarity that has seen our country through many challenges. Together we will remain vigilant against those at home or abroad who wish to harm us.

For now, Laureen and I and Ben and Rachel join all Canadians in praying for those touched by today's attack. May God bless them and keep our land glorious and free.

NDP Leader Tom Mulcair

'We will not forget'

"I stand here tonight in solidarity, side-by-side with my colleagues, with our Prime Minister and with all Canadians.

"This attack struck with sudden and deadly violence.

"It was intended to make us more fearful of our neighbours and less confident in ourselves.

"But it has failed. "Today's events have instead only succeeded in drawing us closer, in making us stronger.

"We woke up this morning in a country blessed by love, diversity and peace, and tomorrow we will do the same.

"Canada is shaken today, but we shall not waver."

EXCERPTS EDITED BY METRO

Liberal Leader Justin Trudeau

'We will get answers'

"It was a cowardly act. An unarmed man was murdered in cold blood.

"Losing ourselves to fear and speculation is the intention of those who commit these heinous acts.

"We have remained Canadians and this is how we will carry on.

"The picture (we have) in our minds (is) of Canadians helping and protecting Canadians. That is who we truly are."

Worldwide success of Sum 41 a big boost for pop-punk Gob

A seven-year span between albums would slow down most bands, but Gob has steadily gained new fans, partly due to vocalist/guitarist Tom Thacker's involvement in another iconic Canadian pop-punk group.

Since 2006, Thacker has played lead guitar and provided backing vocals in Sum 41, a gig he says has been good for Gob and its new record, Apt. 13, released in August through New Damage Records — Gob's first album since 2007's Muertos Vivos.

"Sum is more popular. There's a wider reach, so that's exposed me to other people and I know a lot of the Sum super fans have really latched on to Gob and helped us out and helped us promote Apt. 13 in other countries," says Thacker, noting that Sum 41 frontman Deryck Whibley is recovering well from alcohol-induced liver and kidney failure.

"It's cool because Gob hasn't gone to as many places internationally as Sum has," he adds.

"They've been places like

Canadian pop punk band Gob play Winnipeg on Halloween night in support of its new album Apt. 13. CONTRIBUTED

Japan and Australia and it would be awesome to take Gob around the world as well."

Formed in 1993 in Langley, B.C., Gob is composed of co-founding members Thacker and vocalist-guitarist Theo Goutzinakis, as well as drummer Gabe Mantle and bassist Steven Fairweather.

In the early 2000s, fun Gob songs like Give up the Grudge, I Hear You Calling and Oh! Ellin were in constant rotation on MuchMusic.

Thacker says those popular music videos wouldn't have existed without Soda, a single and video from the band's 1995 album Too Late ... No Friends.

"Our label wanted a video for Soda and we didn't care about doing videos at the time, but we made it on the condition that we could build a ramp and jump our bikes into a lake," Thacker says.

"They're like, 'OK. Do it.' We thought we were playing a joke on them and burning their money but, looking back at it, that's an amazing idea for a video, and that wised us up a bit and taught us that making videos could be a fun process."

If you go...

Gob plays at Ozzy's on Friday, Oct. 31 AT 9:30 p.m.

Television. Ryan Murphy sells another horror series

American Horror Story creator Ryan Murphy will mine a similar vein with Scream Queens, a new horror-comedy series ordered by Fox, The Hollywood Reporter reveals.

Due to air in fall 2015, the first series is set on a college campus rocked by series of murders. The idea is to reprise the anthology format of the FX series American Horror Story, introducing a new setting and plot each season.

The first 15 episodes ordered by Fox will centre on two heroines. Ryan Murphy and producer Brad Falchuk have begun the process of casting the two leads as well as 10 supporting roles.

Scream Queens is Murphy's third series slated to air on American TV next fall. Along with American Horror Story, which will enter its fifth season, FX will air its new spinoff American Crime Story. In the meantime, Murphy's Fox series Glee will end after its sixth cycle, which is due to premiere during the mid-season.

Next year, NBC plans to introduce Shades of Blue (a crime series produced by Jennifer Lopez), Manhunt and Heroes: Reborn. The latter will mark the return of Tim Kring's series after five years off the air. AFP

Filmmaker interview. Birdman's big risks rewarded with Oscar buzz

Alejandro Gonzalez Inarritu had never attempted making a comedy until Birdman. CONTRIBUTED

Oscar-nominated filmmaker Alejandro Gonzalez Inarritu admits it was "scary" making the dark comedy Birdman (The Unexpected Virtue of Ignorance), and he was warned by one of his peers that he was "running to a possibility of failure" by doing it.

"To make a comedy, first, is always a big challenge, especially for somebody who has never done comedy," the film's director and co-writer said in a recent telephone interview. "And the way I decided to do it, which is this one-take thing, it's a very difficult task in a way that challenges you technically and conceptually, because you have to make a lot of decisions and sacrifices by that, and be very aware."

"As one director told me — you're running to disaster."

Turns out that wasn't the case.

Birdman, starring Michael Keaton as a former avian superhero film star desperate for validation and a comeback as he heads an ambitious new Broadway play, is flying high in critics' eyes.

Keaton's performance as Riggan Thomson is already the subject of serious Oscar talk, while praise is also being heaped on the rest of the A-list cast that includes Naomi Watts, Edward Norton, Andrea Riseborough, Zach Galifianakis and Emma Stone.

Rave reviews are also pouring in for Inarritu's "long take" filmmaking style in which the camera follows the actors around the theatre for lengthy periods of time as they rehearse and perform the play, making it seem as if the entire project is one uninterrupted shot.

The Mexican native was delving into foreign territory with the film, which hits theatres on Friday, and says that's just the way he likes it.

"I always find myself much better in an uncomfortable zone," said Inarritu, whose films Amores Perros and Biutiful received Oscar nominations for best foreign language film, while 2006's Babel was up for best picture and best directing.

"When I become comfortable, I become a little angry and depressed and not happy. So I like to be challenged. I like that something excites me or scares me, because if not, I am incomplete."

A snapshot of life as a conflict photographer

Movies. Juliette Binoche takes on the role of a truth-seeking photojournalist in 1,000 Times Good Night

Juliette Binoche is known for pouring everything into her performances. For her role as a dedicated war photographer in 1,000 Times Good Night, she met with top journalists who have captured global atrocities — not only to understand their work, but their personal lives and motivations.

"It just showed me how meaningful it is and how much it costs. And how they organize themselves and how it can be also very tricky in their personal life," the French actress said in a phone interview. "You have to find the right people around you to help you in this difficult journey, because it's not that easy. You're seeing horror and you're alone."

Opening Friday, the film features Binoche as Rebecca, a photojournalist who returns home from Kabul after an especially close brush with death. Her husband (Nikolaj Coster-Waldau) seethes with resentment as he has been busy raising their two daughters while she risks her life in conflict zones.

The rift in their marriage worsens when she takes their daughter (Laurn Canny) on a trip to Kenya that erupts in violence. Rebecca again makes a decision that puts her as close to the danger as possible — the kind of snap judgement call she makes instinctively and her husband can no longer support.

"Witnessing places in the world ... can change, not always, but can change the consciousness of people and also political decisions." Juliette Binoche on war photography

Norwegian director Erik Poppe (Troubled Water) based the film on his own experience as a former war photographer. But he chose to switch the genders in the film, making Binoche his proxy and casting Coster-Waldau as the character based on his wife.

Binoche said she was drawn to 1,000 Times Good Night because she had always been fascinated by war photography. She met with Lynsey Addario, an acclaimed photojournalist known for her work in Afghanistan and Gaza, as well as Zorah Miller, Marcus Bleasdale and others.

"I was wondering as I was talking to them, 'Where is the need coming from?' As an actress of course I was thinking, 'Oh, it's all in the childhood,' the need of being seen and heard and going to very dangerous places — seen and heard because you were not seen and heard in your childhood," Binoche said.

Rebecca is often accused by family and friends of being addicted to the excitement and danger. But she is also determined to make people sit up and pay attention to the horrors of the world: "I want people to choke on their coffee and see and feel and react," she says.

This need to bear witness to injustice is a true motivation of war photographers, said Binoche.

"Witnessing places in the world ... can change, not always, but can change the consciousness of people and also political decisions. So the power it gives to consciousness is also very much what very high-profile war journalists and photographers are doing."

Billy Bob Thornton ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

Billy Bob finally clears the air about that vampire rumour

If you've been waiting and waiting for Billy Bob Thornton to finally address that whole Angelina Jolie wearing a vial of blood around her neck thing from more than a decade ago — then first of all, weird.

And second of all, it's your lucky day!

While speaking at Loyola Marymount University in L.A. recently, the Sling Blade actor was asked about his ex-wife's infamous piece of jewelry.

"I think it's your duty to kind of tell people the truth about this stuff, and the truth is not encouraged anymore," Thornton says. So here's the truth: "You know those lockets you buy that are clear and you put a picture of your granny in it or something like that and wear it around your neck? That's what it was," he explains. "She thought it would be interesting and romantic if we took a little razor blade and sliced our fingers, smeared a little blood on these lockets and you wear it around your neck just like you wear your son or daughter's baby hair in one. Same thing. From that, we were wearing quart jars of blood around our necks. And we were vampires and we lived in a dungeon."

I knew it!

Zellweger isn't afraid to 'face' media frenzy

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

So if you were anywhere around the Internet earlier this week, you heard about Renee Zellweger and reactions to her recent red carpet appearance. Or, more specifically, reactions to her face. Well, apparently Zellweger was listening. And in a move completely uncharacteristic of celebrity culture, she has offered her own response to the fracas. Only it's more awesome in theory than in practice. "I'm glad folks think I look different! I'm living a different, happy, more fulfilling life, and I'm thrilled that perhaps it shows," she tells People magazine. She also calls all the discussion and debate "silly," which isn't exactly the word I'd use for it, but there you go.

"It seems the folks who come digging around for some nefarious truth which doesn't exist won't get off my porch until I answer the door," Zellweger continues, somehow pulling off folksy and coy simultaneously. "My friend say that I look peaceful. I am healthy. For a long time I wasn't doing such a good job with that. I took on a schedule that is not realistically sustainable and didn't allow for taking care of myself. Rather than stopping to recalibrate, I kept running until I was depleted and made bad choices about how to conceal the exhaustion. I was aware of the chaos and finally chose different things." As for talk of a drastic change in her appearance? That's just time, baby. "People don't know me in my 40s," Zellweger explains. "People don't know me healthy for a while. Perhaps I look different. Who doesn't as they get older? But I am different. I'm happy." So I guess you can get off her porch now?

based on an unfounded report regarding Justin Timberlake's alleged behaviour at a club following a performance in Paris to celebrate a birthday and also included a number of purported statements improperly attributed to Jessica Biel, which Heat now understand had never been made by her," representatives for the tabloid said in a statement read in court, adding that Heat "regrets any embarrassment caused to the couple and unreservedly apologizes to them."

Newport-Mimran said while her previous lines have been "quite pretty," she upped the ante to "a little bit sexy" with next spring's collection. "I was very inspired by looking back to the '70s but moving it forward to modern times," Newport-Mimran says. Newport-Mimran dressed models in body suits with fringe, gold and black accessories and brought the first pops of colour to the runway with a floral pattern featuring pinks, oranges and browns.

The beauty of black in every room

Decorating. Rule No. 1: Define your space with the darkest of neutrals to create impact

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

There's an old rule in decorating: Every room needs a bold hit of black. The darkness of black helps to rest the eye in rooms that are full of colour or pattern. If overused, black can look cheap; if underused, it won't have impact.

If you want to paint a room with black, there are a few decorator rules to follow

1. Use it on one wall as a focal point only if there are a few heavy or dark furniture pieces to help balance the visual weight.
2. Paint an entire room black and create a dramatic background for a large collection of art, mirrors and draperies.
3. North-facing rooms should have red-based black colours and south-facing room should have blue-based black colours.

Giving chili a wildly delicious makeover

Cookbook of the Week

Get with the latest meat trend

North America's original red meat, bison has become a trendy ingredient.

In Buffalo Girl Cooks Bison by Jennifer Bain, it is featured front and centre in more than 100 recipes.

The first comprehensive contemporary bison cookbook for a general North American market, it also introduces to you prominent bison ranchers in Canada and the United States.

Recipes include Maple-Whisky Bison Burgers, Quinoa and Kale Bison Soup, Braised Bison Short Ribs, Thai Curry Bison and Vegetables, Bison Sausage and Sweet Potato Frittata and more. METRO

Karen's 'Flying D' Bison Chili. While you're changing up the meat, why not replace the kidney beans as well?

"People are usually surprised to discover that American media mogul Ted Turner is also a bison rancher who co-owns a chain of restaurants called Ted's Montana Grill," writes Jennifer Bain in Buffalo Girl Cooks Bison.

"Bison plays a key role on the menu. This chili, created by Ted's personal chef, Karen Averitt, is one of the restaurant's signature dishes. Pinto beans are a welcome change from red kidney beans.

Flying D, by the way, is one of Ted's ranches in Montana."

1. In a large pot over medium-high heat, cook the bison, stirring with a wooden spoon to break up large pieces, for 5 minutes. Add the yellow onion and garlic. Cook, stirring, until soft, about 5 to 7 minutes.

2. In a measuring cup, combine the warm water, tomato paste, and beef bouillon concentrate. Whisk

Ingredients

- 1 lb ground bison
- 1/2 cup diced yellow onion
- 2 tsp minced garlic
- 1 1/2 cups warm water
- 6 tbsp tomato paste
- 1 tbsp liquid beef bouillon concentrate
- 1/2 tsp dried oregano leaves
- 4 tsp chili powder
- 1 1/4 tsp ground cumin
- 1 tsp granulated sugar
- Pinch cayenne pepper
- Pinch freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup canned pinto beans, drained and rinsed
- 1/2 cup fresh diced tomatoes or canned diced tomatoes with liquid

Optional toppings

- Grated cheddar
- Finely diced red onions
- Chopped jalapenos

well. Add to the pot. Bring to a boil. Add the oregano, chili powder, cumin, sugar, cayenne pepper, and black pepper. Reduce the heat to medium-low. Simmer for 15 minutes. Add the beans and tomatoes. Simmer for 1 minute.

3. Serve chili topped, if desired, with cheese, red onions, and jalapenos.

Voynov never hit girlfriend: Lawyer

Slava Voynov's attorney says the Los Angeles Kings defenceman never hit his girlfriend, and he blames Voynov's arrest on a misunderstanding partly caused by the couple's limited English.

Craig Renetzky is hopeful the NHL will end Voynov's indefinite suspension after reviewing the events that led to Voynov's arrest at a hospital near his home.

"From everything they've both said to me, this didn't amount to a crime," Renetzky said. "I think when the police understand what happened, their impression will be quite different."

Without providing specific details, Renetzky said Voynov's girlfriend's injury resulted from "an accident."

Cloudy skies await Jets in next 5 weeks

THE HOCKEY NEWS
Ronnie Shuker
winnipeg@metronews.ca

Check out NHL.com's scoring list, but don't bother scanning the first three pages for a Winnipeg Jet. You won't find one until page 4. That's where the team's co-leader in scoring, Bryan Little, appears. He's tied for 92nd overall with four points in six games.

And therein lies the problem. So let's can the "accountability" crap that's been making its rounds in Winnipeg since coach Paul Maurice f-bombed the Jets media earlier this week. Scoring is the problem right now in The Peg, pure and simple. At 1.83 goals per game, the Jets sit 27th overall in the NHL. To give their offensive woes a little context, Winnipeg is scoring at the exact same pace as Buffalo did in 2013-14. And we all know where the Sabres finished last season.

Should that be surprising? A little. After all, Winnipeg was a respectable, if unimpressive, 15th overall in the league last season at 2.67. Maybe the offence is just going through an early season slump. After all, every team goes through it at some point every season.

Or perhaps the problem is much simpler: no Evander Kane.

As ambivalent as Winnipeg fans may be toward Kane (and as ambivalent as he appears to be toward Winnipeg), he is the Jets' only superstar. Jacob Trouba may one day join him, maybe Mark Scheifele, too. But Kane is the face of the franchise. And the team misses his offence dearly.

With no set timetable for Kane's return, however, the Jets will have to make do without him as the team enters the toughest part of its schedule. (Warning: It's not pretty.)

After finishing up the current homestand against the Lightning and Avalanche, Winnipeg will play just five games at MTS Centre until Dec. 3. Wait, it gets worse. All but two of the teams they'll play on the road (Carolina and Buffalo) are at or above .500.

Which means the next two games are about as "must-win" as games can get so early in a season.

Not to sound alarmist, but with 12 road games to play between now and the end of November, the best-case scenario is that Winnipeg doesn't fall too far out of the post-season picture.

If the Jets get to December within striking distance of a playoff spot, it'll be a blessing. If they get there in a playoff spot, it'll be a minor miracle.

Either way, the next five weeks could make or break the Jets' season.

Advanced stats

The Jets rank 21st in both Corsi close (49.5) and Fenwick close (48.3).

- Corsi close = shots on goal, missed shots and blocked shots when the score is within one goal in the first two periods or tied in the third
- Fenwick close = shots on goal and missed shots when the score is within one goal in the first two periods or tied in the third

Manning, Broncos charged up to play Bolts

Peyton Manning's only division loss since joining the Broncos came at the hands of the Chargers. JUSTIN EDMONDS/GETTY IMAGES

Peyton Manning laughed when his receivers played hot potato with his record-setting memento last weekend.

He won't be nearly as jolly Thursday night if the San Diego Chargers play keep-away from the Denver Broncos' high-powered offence as they did last year.

The Broncos were held under 65 snaps just twice last season—both times by San Diego.

The Chargers controlled the clock for more than 38 minutes in both games, including Manning is on pace for 51 touchdowns and 4,928 yards—just under his record-setting 2013 season of 55 TDs and 5,477 yards.

a 27-20 stunner at Denver on a Thursday night in December. That was Manning's only divisional loss since heading West in 2012 and the Broncos' only loss at home.

"Last year they caught us sleeping," cornerback Chris Harris Jr. said. "This year, we know they can come in and beat us. So, we're preparing well, we're preparing hard and I think we'll be a lot better."

The Broncos (5-1) have beefed up their defence and that should make it harder for the Chargers (5-2) to keep Manning & Co. on the sideline again.

Manning earned his 27th career AFC Offensive Player of the Week award for his four-TD masterpiece on Sunday against the 49ers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cameroon, Nigeria clinch spots for 2015

Nigeria and Cameroon are the first African countries to qualify for the FIFA Women's World Cup in Canada next year.

Both won their semi-finals Wednesday at the African Women's Championship in Windhoek, Namibia.

Asisat Oshoala scored both goals as Nigeria defeated South Africa 2-1.

Captain Christine Manie scored for Cameroon with less than three minutes left in extra time for a 2-1 win over the Ivory Coast.

The two African countries bring the number of qualified teams to 17 in the 24-country World Cup, to be played next summer in Moncton, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cornish likely to sit out with Stamps sitting pretty

Calgary coach John Hufnagel says star running back Jon Cornish is unlikely to play when the Stampeders host the Saskatchewan Roughriders on Friday.

In a post on the Stampeders' official Twitter account, Hufnagel says Cornish will likely miss the game "due to general soreness."

The Stampeders (13-2) have already clinched first place in the West Division and will want to have a healthy Cornish in the post-season.

Cornish, from New Westminster, B.C., leads the league in rushing with 977 yards despite missing seven games this season to injury.

Sabres fans crave 'The Next One'

League low. Hopeful fans stitch 'McDavid 97' Sabres jerseys hoping for likely top draft pick in Buffalo

Connor McDavid tries not to read what's written about him, following the advice of agent Bobby Orr and so many people around him. But it's hard after Buffalo Sabres games.

"Whenever the Sabres lose, my Twitter just kind of blows up with fans kind of talking about me and stuff like that," McDavid said.

It goes beyond social media. Some fans have already had "McDavid 97" Sabres jerseys made up and wear them to games that he's not even eligible to play in.

Buffalo is tied for the fewest points in the NHL through six games and has been outshot 227-141. With the team in full rebuild mode and no expectation for success this season, some fans are on board with the idea of tanking for the No. 1 pick in June's draft.

Even with a draft lottery system in place that discourages tanking, former Sabres defenceman and current Erie

Connor McDavid, an 18-year-old from Newmarket, Ont., had a goal and three assists in his first game at First Niagara Center in Buffalo, which could be his home rink in less than a year. JAMES P. MCCOY/THE BUFFALO NEWS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Otters assistant coach Jay McKee understands why those looking at the long-term picture are willing to cheer for losing to get an opportunity to pick McDavid.

"They should want to get Connor McDavid, the fans here in Buffalo," McKee said. "But obviously in order to have a chance at drafting Connor, they're probably going to have to have a bad year again. And as a fan, as a player, that's not necessarily what you want, so it's kind of a double-edged sword."

On Wednesday night, McDavid played his first game at First Niagara Center, which could be his home rink in less than a year. In something of a novelty regular-season Ontario Hockey League game, McDavid and the Otters were in Buffalo to play the Niagara IceDogs.

Standing at a lectern Tuesday afternoon with a Sabres logo on it, McDavid said it was pretty weird to think about fans in Buffalo already getting his name stitched on jerseys. The 17-year-old, who's considered "The Next One" after Wayne Gretzky and Sidney Crosby, insisted he's not thinking much about the possibility that this is the first of many times he'll step onto the ice here.

"Maybe a little bit," McDavid said. "If Buffalo happens to be the one that drafts me, that'll be great and I'll be thrilled. It's the NHL. You kind of go where you're picked. Every NHL city and organization is first-class. Buffalo would be obviously a tremendous honour." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tank talk

"If you want to get a chance to get Connor McDavid, you're going to have to finish real low in the standings."
